1. Read the passage given below and answer the questions that follow by choosing the correct options. 1×5=5

School used to be all about writing, whether it was the exercise books we wrote or the notes we passed round, or the lines we stayed in to do. But not any more. Now it's all about typing. My six year old daughter is part of the first generation that is truly computer literate and I really didn't want her learning copperplate writing. I could see that spelling, grammar, syntax and punctuation were important, but handwriting ? By the time she's in university, handwriting may not be as relevant as needlepoint. So when my daughter came home last year with cursive handwriting homework, I was nonplussed. Cursive was originally developed to make it easier for children to write with a quill. By joining up the letters, they kept the quill on the parchment and minimized ink blots. But my daughter writes with a laptop. I explained as much to her teacher at the next parents' day. But her teacher explained something to me. Research suggests that the process of writing information down on paper, by hand, has a more direct effect on the formation of memories in the learning process than typing. Taking notes in class is still the most effective way to learn. It's a better way to store the skills for written language in a child's brain than pressing keys. There's nothing old-fashioned about handwriting. Handwriting is where it's at.

- (a) According to the narrator his daughter is _____ .
- (i) computer literate
 - (ii) illiterate
 - (iii) copperplate writer
 - (iv) handwriting expert

- (b) _____ was developed to make writing with a quill easier.
- (i) Typing
 - (ii) Grammar
 - (iii) Cursive writing

 - (ii) same as
 - (iii) superior to
 - (iv) not as effective as
- (e) Writing by hand is _____ .
- (i) old-fashioned
 - (ii) not old-fashioned
 - (iii) of the future
 - (iv) not used today

2. Read the passage given below and answer the questions that follow by choosing the correct options. 1×5=5

Before chocolate became an elixir fit only for the kings, Mayans drank a cold, frothy mix made from kakawa beans harvested from the Mexican rainforests. Found in rows inside football-size fruit filled with white pulp, the beans need two weeks for fermenting, drying and roasting. Then Mayans began bartering beans with the Aztecs. The Spanish court kept the source of the beans secret for nearly 100 years. Inevitably, word spread and chocolate travelled swiftly throughout Europe. The first chocolate shop in London opened in 1657, serving the drink in gold and silver cups.

Still, the brew tasted rather fatty due to the cocoa butter and gritty from imperfect crushing of the seeds. A Dutch inventor separated the cocoa butter in the early 1800s, and before the century was out, a conching machine smoothed the chocolate. A Swiss chocolatier added evaporated milk to create the first chocolate bar. Soldiers who ate the bars for energy during World War I brought their taste home, creating a huge market for chocolate bars and snacks invented in the early 1900s.

(a) 'Bartering' means _____ .

- (i) selling
- (ii) buying
- (iii) exchanging
- (iv) changing

(b) _____ kept the source of the chocolate beans a secret for nearly 100 years.

- (i) Mayans
- (ii) The Spanish
- (iii) The soldiers
- (iv) Mexico

- (c) The first _____ was made by a Swiss chocolatier.
- (i) cocoa seed
 - (ii) cocoa butter
 - (iii) evaporated milk
 - (iv) chocolate bar
- (d) Mayans got kakawa seeds from _____ .
- (i) the kings
 - (ii) the Aztecs
 - (iii) Mexican rainforests
 - (iv) London
- (e) Cocoa brew tasted fatty because of _____ .
- (i) bad crushing of the seeds
 - (ii) cocoa butter
 - (iii) imperfect crushing of the seeds
 - (iv) vanilla flavour

3. Read the poem given below :

$$\frac{1}{2} \times 10 = 5$$

To a Fish

You strange, astonished-looking, angle-faced,

Dreary-mouthed, gaping wretches of the sea,

Gulping salt-water everlastingly.

Cold-blooded, though with red your blood be graced,

And mute, though dwellers in the roaring waste;

And you, all shapes beside, that fishy be —

Some round, some flat, some long, all devilry,

Legless, unloving, infamously chaste —

O scaly, slippery, wet, swift, staring wights,
What is't ye do ? What life lead ? eh, dull goggles ?
How do ye vary your vile days and nights ?
How pass your Sundays ? Are ye still but joggles
In ceaseless wash ? Still naught but gapes and bites,
And drinks and stares, diversified with boggles ?

- Given below is the summary of the poem. Fill in the blanks with suitable words to complete the summary. Use only one word for each blank.

To a man a fish is a strange creature. Its (a) _____ face has always a look of (b) _____ on it. Its mouth is mostly open and keeps on (c) _____ salt-water. It is called cold-blooded even if red blood runs (d) _____ its body. It lives among (e) _____ waters but is mute itself. The fish may have many (f) _____ but it has no shapely legs. It is loveless and chaste.

The fish are swift and slippery and all the time (g) _____ at others. Man wonders at the (h) _____ they lead. Are their days (i) _____ from their nights ? And what do they do on Sundays ? Do they ever stop or keep on gaping, biting, drinking and (j) _____, punctuated by sudden movements ?

4. Read the passage given below and complete the sentences that follow :

Ganesh Chaturthi is celebrated around India but most grandly in Maharashtra. But the ten-day extravaganza the festival has become is a relatively recent creation. In Pen, in Maharashtra, there are nearly 250 families which work on Ganapathi statues for a living. Both clay and Plaster of Paris are used for the making of the murtis. Clay is more difficult than POP to work with and there are few expert clay sculptors left. Many devout customers insist on clay murtis, for after they are immersed in water, clay dissolves readily while POP can take months with fragments floating to the shore days after the immersion, upsetting both devotees and environmentalists. Once a murti is made, it is ready for decoration. It is first buffed with a soft cloth. Then a small red tilak is placed reverently on its forehead. Next it is sprayed with clay resin primer. After it dries, it is again buffed with 'jheel', a subtle sheen that highlights skin tones. Finally, the most important finishing touch, 'aakhni', the painting of the eyes, is done. It is when the eyes are painted on that an idol comes alive.

- (a) Ganesh Chaturthi has recently become _____

- (b) The material used for the making of murtis is _____

- (c) Fewer clay murtis are made these days because _____

- (d) The devout customers, however, demand clay murtis because ____

- (e) The word in the passage which means the same as 'respectfully' is _____
