SUMMARY OF THE LESSON

Every year a fair was held in Rasheed's village. The occasion was Eid. Traders came there from far and wide to sell their goods.

Rasheed's uncle took him to the fair. Their domestic help, Bhaiya, also went with them. There was a big crowd there. Uncle left them at one place and went away with his friends. He, however, warned the boy not to go far, and not to buy anything in his absence.

Rasheed was led by Bhaiya to different shops at the fair. He reached a shop, called the Lucky Shop. The shopkeeper was a middle-aged man. He urged the visitors to come and try their luck. It was a game of chance.

The player paid 50 paise and got six numbered discs. He was to add up the numbers on discs and find the total. He won the article marked with that number.

An old man played the game and won a lovely clock. But he had no need of it. The shopkeeper bought it back for 15 rupees. He was richer by 15 rupees.

Then a boy tried his luck. He won a comb, a fountain pen, a wrist watch and finally a table lamp. He sold all the items back to the shopkeeper. He went away happily with a good deal of cash.

The narrator also wanted to try his luck. But he was unlucky. He won only cheap items like pencils, a bottle of ink, etc. He lost all his money. He looked sad.

Presently Uncle came back. Bhaiya told him the story. Uncle was neither sad nor angry. He took Rasheed to a shop and bought him so many gifts.

Back home, he explained to Rasheed the trick played by the shopkeeper. The old man and the boy were, in fact, the shopkeeper's friends. They tempted the innocent people to try their luck. Uncle assured Rasheed that he was neither unlucky nor foolish.

SUMMARY OF THE POEM
The child walks to his school at ten in the morning. Everyday he meets a bangle-seller. The man goes about at ease all day long. The child is tempted to adopt the vocation of that happy hawker.

In the afternoon the child comes back from the school. He sees a gardener working with spade in a kothi. The gardener is his own master. He soils his clothes and gets wet in the rain. But nobody scolds or punishes him. The child wishes he too were a gardener, free to do what he liked.

At night the child sees the watchman on duty. The lone man carries a lantern and keeps walking in the lane all night. The child envies the watchman. He too wants to go about freely and do what he likes.

1. Your partner and you may now be able to answer these questions.
   (i) Who is the speaker in the poem? Who are the people the speaker meets? What are they doing?
   (ii) What wishes does the child in the poem make? Why does the child want to be a hawker, a gardener, or a watchman? Pick out the lines in each stanza which tell us this.
   (iii) From the way the child envies the hawker, the gardener and the watchman, we can guess that there are many things the child has to do, or must not do.
Make a list of the do's and don'ts that the child doesn't like. The first line is done for you.

The child must come home at a fixed time.

The child must not get his clothes dirty in the dust.

Now add to the list your own complaints about the things you have to do, or must not do.

(iv) Like the child in the poem, you perhaps have your own, wishes for yourself. Talk to your friend, using "I wish I were..."

Ans. (i) The speaker in this poem is a school-going child. Every day he happens to meet the hawker selling bangles, the gardener digging away at the garden, and the watchman walking the street all night.

(ii) The little child is innocent. He watches the people keenly around him. He is sick of checks on his movement. He wants to enjoy the same freedom as do the hawker, the gardener, and the watchman. They do what they like.

The child says: 1. I wish I were a hawker, spending my day in the road.
2. I wish I were a gardener, digging away at the garden.
